NEW YORK STOCKS IN SEVERE SHOCK

Westinghouse Electric Net Loss $35 a Share—General List Holds Remarkably Well.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Noon-Before the opening of the New York Stock Exchange there was a very uncase. feeling in financial circles, and also among security interests. No one knew just what the day would bring forth, and there were some very nasty rumors in circulation. Some time before the usual opening hour Pittsburg wired the temporary closing of the stock ex-change, on the advice of the clearing house association of that city.

This in itself was a very unusual operation. Once before Chicago witnessed the closing of the local stock exchange at the time of the Moore Brothers failure, when every bank in the city held more or less Moore and Yerkes, securities.

The worst rumor of the morning had to do with the reported temporary embarrasment of the Westinghouse Elec-tric Company, the great corporation presided over by George Westinghouse and with auxiliary companies in for-presided over by Georgie Vesser.

The clasure of the Pittsburg stock credence to the report, and this was further accentuated by a drop of as a share it. Westinghouse it. Westi vanced to 80, and went off again to 79\%. Atchison lost 2 points net, Baltimore and Ohlo 2. Canadian Pacific 1, Delaware and Hudscn, one of the high-priced investment stocks, was liquidated to a small extent, but at a loss of 16 points ard with a recovery of 4½; Great Northern 134 off to firm yesterday's finals, Il inois Central actually higher. Northern Pacific and Great Northern followed their own sweet will without Hill support, and the former sold at 2\% to 3 points lower.

eral Electric from 106% to 100, with probabilities of even lower ligures. The Steels were about as steady as at 11% to 22%, and then to 23. Preferred of the local market, and the u 81% to 82%, or practically where it closed was weak, with prices down 1 to yesterday. Smelting lost %.

Westinghouse Electric after reaching 42 found some buying, and recovered to 46. General Electric after going off to 894 turned to 98.

The Steels were fractionally lower. Union Pacific lost a net point, St. Paul 14, and Reading 2. Copper surprised its friends by recovering all of its decline. Great Northern recovered all of its decline but a point.

3 p. m.—The market continued to held a fair share of strength right up to the close, many of the stocks being well up to the closing figures of yesterday, Westinghouse Electric dropped to a new low at 34½. The Steels were strong. Union Pacific and the Hill shares made recoveries from low.

Union Pacific and the Hill shares made recoveries from low.

The feeling at the close was one of thankfulpess that the day had passed as well as it had—for the stock market. Of course, the situation is critical, but it is fortunate that existing conditions have developed at the end of a long period of liquidation, and that the general public have no stocks to liquidate.

It had been arranged to open the meeting with an address by Second Assistant Postmaster James T. McCleary, but owing to his lateness in arriving, George H. Roberts, president of the first, second, and third class postmasters of New York, was introduced, and delivered an address on the purpose of the national association and the duties delivered an address on the purpose of the national association and the duties of the postmaster.

Mr. Roberts sald, in part:

"We are, especially in point of numbers, members of the greatest organization in the United States Government, and, being representatives of every part of the country, we are better able to suggest what reforms and additions should be made to the postal system of the United States. There was a time when it could not have been said that the Postoffice Department was the purest branch of the Government service, but since the crisis of several years ago, when the President took a hand in purifying the service of the department, no one can say that it is not as clean and efficient a service as can be had.

Leading Citizen.

Leading Citizen.

"The duties of a postmaster are varied. In a great many small towns the country the postmaster is the leading man, and, because he is so cor ered, he must be both liberal and eminently fair. He must realize that he is a servant of the people in two ca-pacities, and it is his duty to give his very best to his office and country in both respects."

Mr. Roberts scored the present system of appointing postmasters by means of bidding.

McCleary Taiks.

James T. McCleary, Second Assistant Postmaster, was next introduced. He paid glowing tributes to President Roosevelt, Postmaster General Meyer, and Congress in connection with its attitude toward the postal service. "I have spent many years in Wash-ington," said Mr. McCleary, "and in all that time my respect of Congressmen Magaras, 16; Concords, 121/2013c; Salem, has not only never faltered, but has increased." He then went on to tell of the inner workings of the Postoffice Department, giving in full detail the duties of Second Assistant Postmaster.

He also heartily thanked Mr. Roberts for mentioning that suggestions for re form and advancement are needed and appreciated by the department. "How much more forcibly," said Mr. Mcmuch more forcibly," said Mr. Mc-Cleary, "are the needs of our various departments brought to our attention when done so by the men in the rank and file, rather than from those higher up.
